

Spring Hill Corrections Facility

*Project: Spring Hill Corrections Facility
Client: Corrections Department
Location: Waikato
Contract Value: 280 million*

The Spring Hill Corrections Facility (SHCF) is the largest new prison ever constructed in New Zealand.

With 28 hectares of building area, SHCF caters for the needs of 650 inmates and the facility's 341 staff.

The project was delivered using a Collaborative Working Arrangement (CWA) contracting methodology with Mainzeal as main contractor. Electrix was selected based on the company's strong track record and solid experience in the institutional sector including the Northland Region Corrections Facility.

The collaborative project environment, allowed the Electrix team - of up to 40 men - to draw from their broad collective skill base and incorporate innovative aspects into the design.

A careful planning and design phase with much attention to detail was vital in order to safeguard the facility's strict security requirements.

Given the sensitive nature of the project, a variety of specialist equipment and fittings had to be sourced and integrated.

The project was fast-tracked and features 32 kilometers of cabling which was installed throughout the 650 hectare site.
